Social responsibility projects contribute to the construction of a more just society

Gerdau Pro-Library Project

- The Gerdau Group sponsors more than 110 social projects in South and North America, because it believes that the role of a company is based on its contribution to sustainable economic, social and environmental development.
- With this vision, it dedicated R$ 13 million in 2002 to activities focused primarily on the exchange of know-how, an essential factor for the construction of a better quality of life for the population.
- Its projects operate in the areas of education, culture, volunteer work, scientific research, entrepreneurship, health, sport, and Total Quality.
- The Group also encourages the direct voluntary participation of its employees in the transfer of managerial know-how to social organizations, with the ultimate aim of developing a more just society.
